

☐

I'm not robot

reCAPTCHA

Continue

Barry and kim plath

Move over, Duggars! There’s a new gigantic religious family on TLC and we kinda can’t get enough of them. Which is fine, because there are 11 of them, so, you know. Plenty to go around. TLC’s Welcome to Plathville features the Plath family — that’s mom and dad (Kim and Barry Plath), and kids Ethan, Hosanna, Micah, Moriah, Lydia, Isaac, Amber, Cassia, and Mercy. Whew.Article continues below advertisementAlso, the family performs gospel songs together as The Plath Family Band. Wondering how this family/musical act got their start? So were we. Turns out, it all can be traced back to Kim and Barry Plath. Here’s a closer look at the parents of the Plath clan.Source: YouTubeArticle continues below advertisement”In the spring of ’97, on the exact same day, before either of us either talked about it or showed any interest in the other, God revealed to Barry and I that we were going to marry.” Kim writes on the family website. After learning of their apparent destiny to marry, the two didn’t wait long — they were married in July of that same year.Article continues below advertisementKim says that she and Barry have sought God “on major life decisions as well as the minor, day-to-day choices” throughout their marriage. They also taught their children to do the same. According to Kim, the result is “a family that delights in each other’s company.” Source: TLCArticle continues below advertisementFor one thing, Kim and Barry have tried to raise their children apart from the influences of modern technology. “We have limited computers. They don’t play video games,” Kim explains in a recent promo for Welcome to Plathville. The family doesn’t own a television set. None of the children have tasted soda (Or, at least, they hadn’t until recently — in the promo, we see oldest son Ethan take a sip of Coke before commenting, “That’s really good.”) They don’t know who Tom Brady is. They don’t know who Spider-Man is. But they know a lot about instruments and singing gospel music.Article continues below advertisementSource: YouTubeKim was a music major at Florida State University, and she used her knowledge and appreciation of music to teach her children how to play several instruments. In the beginning, the whole family played classical music together. But in 2013, Hosanna learned a fiddle tune and Ethan started to accompany her on the piano. Ethan’s grandfather then gifted him an accordion, Micah bought a mandolin, Moriah started learning the guitar, and Kim got an upright bass. Then Lydia started playing the banjo, and Hosanna took up the dobro. Before long, the family transitioned to playing and singing Southern Gospel music together, and the rest is history. Those who have been tuning into Welcome to Plathville have been captivated by the unusual family from Georgia. Fans have watched as Kim and Barry Plath’s adult children have rebelled against their highly-sheltered upbringing and are finally experiencing the real world outside of their secluded bubble. Well, most of them, anyway. Because although their eldest daughter Hosanna Plath doesn’t appear on the TLC series, she still seems to be on good terms with her parents. And she recently had a baby!Article continues below advertisementAlthough the eldest child of Kim and Barry Plath has been introduced and occasionally mentioned on her family’s reality TV series, Hosanna doesn’t play an active role in Welcome to Plathville. Naturally, fans have wondered why she isn’t a bigger part of the narrative.Source: TLCArticle continues below advertisementAs it turns out, Hosanna and her husband, Timothy Noble, live in Ohio. So we’re guessing her distance from Georgia plays a role in her not appearing on the TLC show. Then again, Jinger and Jeremy lived in Texas and now in California — while the rest of the Duggar family remains in Arkansas, and the Vuolos are still very much part of Counting On. So maybe they just prefer a more private life during their downtime.It’s also likely that Hosanna and Timothy’s busy work schedule has them tied up. After meeting at the National Quartet Convention — which is a gospel music event — in 2016 and marrying in June 2019, the couple is often traveling and performing as a singing pianist/violinist duo. Husband and wife have also released a number of albums, including their first Christmas compilation, “Fear Not,” which was released on Dec. 1, 2020. The young couple is busy in another way, too.Article continues below advertisementHosanna was reportedly pregnant and due with her first child in late 2020 (either in November or September, depending on the source). Eagle-eyed fans spotted the eldest Plath daughter wearing a bridesmaid dress and sporting what appears to be a bump about four months ago.Article continues below advertisementIn the said photo, Hosanna was at the wedding of her friends, Nurie Rodrigues and Nathan Keller, who is Anna (Keller) Duggar’s brother. (That’s Josh Duggar’s wife.) It really is a small world! Take a look for yourself.Source: RedditArticle continues below advertisementUnfortunately for Welcome to Plathville fans who want to stay on top of the most recent happenings in the family, Hosanna Plath doesn’t appear to be active on social media — at least publicly, that is. None of Hosanna’s siblings who are on Instagram have shared news of welcoming a new niece or nephew, either.It’s entirely possible that Hosanna and Timothy’s baby has already been born at this point, and that the Plaths are simply respecting their wishes for privacy in regard to making the news public. Hosanna might have also been due in late November and is ready to give birth any day now. It’s difficult to know for sure.Fans will just have to wait and see if there’s a big announcement from the Plath family or TLC in the coming weeks to learn more about Hosanna’s baby. Watch new episodes of Welcome to Plathville on Tuesdays at 10 p.m. EST on TLC. Barry and Kim Plath reportedly wanted their own TV show more than their kids, or at least that’s how their estranged daughter-in-law, Olivia, tells it. And yet, TLC’s Welcome to Plathville has arguably brought them more harm than good. Heading into season 2, Barry and Kim are completely cut off from Olivia and their son/her husband, Ethan, while teenagers Micah and Moriah have fled the family homestead in search of some much-needed independence. The Plath parents have come under fire from fans who believe their methods — which include prohibiting their 9 kids from watching TV, drinking soda, or going on social media — are too extreme. Regardless of your own personal opinion of the ultra conservative couple, however, there’s no denying they’ve been through some incredibly tough times. Kim, in particular, has her reasons for being so hard on her kids and they’re predominantly based on her own difficult life experiences. The Plath Family website reports Kim and Barry have been married for over 20 years. In keeping with other super-religious reality TV families like the Duggars, they home-school their children. The Plaths perform together in a family band, playing Southern Gospel style music (via Distractify). Kim currently works as a naturopathic doctor. However, in college at Florida State University, she was a music major. Plath’s love of music assisted in the formation of the family band for she taught her kids how to play several instruments. According to their site, God told Kim and Barry that they were destined to be together. “In the spring of ’97, on the exact same day, before either of us either talked about it or showed any interest in the other, God revealed to Barry and I that we were going to marry,” she recalled. The Plaths are completely devoted to God and seek his guidance in every moment of their daily lives. Her faith has certainly stood to Plath as she’s suffered more than her fair share of hardships. As Woman’s Day advises, back in 2008, her 17-month-old son Joshua died in a tragic accident after Plath accidentally hit him with her car while moving fruit trees on their farm. The youngster’s death was ultimately ruled an accident, but his parents were shaken by it regardless. Plath recalled how she could barely get out of bed in the morning, but thankfully Barry was unwavering in his support. The matriarch’s hatred of alcohol comes from a surprisingly personal place, as she revealed during an episode of Welcome to Plathville that, during college, driving while drunk and waking up not knowing where she was was a typical occurrence for her. “I could’ve died so many different ways,” Plath admitted. Thankfully, her faith helped the mother of nine make it through the hard times, hence why Plath is so unflinching in her beliefs nowadays. December 16, 2020 by Jane Flowers 0 Comments Barry Plath and Kim revisited the death of their son Joshua again this season. Welcome to Plathville fans first heard last season about the tragic accident that killed the little boy. In fact, TLC devoted quite a lot of time to the story. And now in Season 2, the Plath parents again talk about it. And, not without some skepticism from fans. Barry Plath and Kim lost their son Joshua in 2008 We reported on November 24 last year, that the show revealed that Kim killed her son when she ran him over. Back then, she explained that while she moved some fruit trees, she lost sight of the 17-month-old boy. And she ran him over. Killed straight away, the incident was officially ruled as an accident. After that, Kim sank into a very deep depression and she credits Barry for bringing her out of it. On the Plath Family Website, Kim wrote about her fragility, saying, she “totally lost [her] will to live.” She added, “ I would have just curled up and died.” But fortunately, Barry patiently supported his wife through her darkest days. At the time, some fans wondered if Barry Plath and Kim became super-controlling of the kids after that. Bear in mind, she won’t allow them sweet treats, much contact with the outside world, or even access to technology. The revisitation of Joshua’s death gets a skeptical reaction from fans If you thought the sad story was done and dusted, you’d be wrong. The subject came up again in Welcome to Plathville Season 2. Meaww noted that twelve years passed since Joshua died. “But, the parents...still [battle] the void.” However, finally, they feel it’s time “for them to get over the tragic past and move on.” Fans know that Ethan left home, so did Micah and now, Moriah followed them out of the house. But, the younger kids remain there. Barry Plath and Kim want to get the younger kids to all go and visit the cemetery so they finally “celebrate” Joshua’s short 17 months of life. Some TLC fans think they obsess too much And others wonder what really happened that day on the farm. Over on Twitter, plenty of people spoke out about it. And, some of them sound downright suspicious of Kim. Twitterati discuss Joshua Welcome to Plathville fans thought the scenes about Joshua looked a bit staged. And, others wondered about Kim and her involvement. Bear in mind, Barry Plath and Kim seem almost universally despised by TLC fans. One critic wrote, “Barry looks like he knows where the bodies are buried.” Then, another person noted, “FYI whenever Kim talks about Joshua’s death it makes me EXTREMELY uncomfortable.” One person picked up on the conversation Kim had. They wrote, “Geez, the way she explained Joshua’s death to the girls was...Factual, but... the words she used as in “killed” why not “went to Heaven?” Then saying “ran over”...maybe “truck hit him... a fatal accident.” Does anyone else feel like something doesn’t add up with the story of how Joshua died and how she talks about it? #welcometoplathville pic.twitter.com/VbXAdGgCYi — Samantha (@samjami14) December 16, 2020 While Barry Path and Kim went through a tragic time, some Welcome to Plathville fans just don’t know if it all went down the way they describe it. Tags: Barry Plath and Kim, Joshua Plath, Kim Plath, Kim Plath killed Joshua, TLC, Welcome to Plathville Dana Hanson-Firestone 2 years agoBarry Plath is the patriarch of the Plath family and he has recently become a reality television star on the new series “Welcome to Plathville.” He’s a very private individual but his life is being made public on the television show that details the unique lifestyle that he and his wife have adopted to raise their family. Here are 10 things that you probably didn’t know about Barry Plath that might help you become better acquainted with the recent television personality.1. He is the father of nine childrenBarry and his wife Kim Plath have been married since 1997. He and Kim have nine children together. Three of them are adults and the rest are minor children who keep the couple on their toes, but it’s a lot of fun to go along with the hard work involved. The kids are Ethan age 21, Hosannah, 20, Micah 18, Moriah, 17, Lydia 15, Isaac 13, Amer 10, Cassia 8, and Mercy 6.2. He suffered a tragic loss in his familyWhile Barry was away at work, his wife Kim was busy at the family farm transplanting fruit trees. She was using their family suburban. She didn’t see their young son Joshua who got in the way of the vehicle. Kim ran over 17-month old Joshua accidentally. An ambulance was called and Barry was right behind the emergency vehicle on the more than 10 mile trip to the family farm. When he and the emergency crew arrived, his son had passed away. this was a terribly hard thing for Barry and Kim to bear.3. Barry Plath is kind, loving and not judgmental of his wifeAfter the loss of his son, “Barry looks like he knows where the bodies are buried.” Then, another person noted, “FYI whenever Kim talks about Joshua’s death it makes me EXTREMELY uncomfortable.” One person picked up on the conversation Kim had. They wrote, “Geez, the way she explained Joshua’s death to the girls was...Factual, but... the words she used as in “killed” why not “went to Heaven?” Then saying “ran over”...maybe “truck hit him... a fatal accident.” Does anyone else feel like something doesn’t add up with the story of how Joshua died and how she talks about it? #welcometoplathville pic.twitter.com/VbXAdGgCYi — Samantha (@samjami14) December 16, 2020 While Barry Path and Kim went through a tragic time, some Welcome to Plathville fans just don’t know if it all went down the way they describe it. Tags: Barry Plath and Kim, Joshua Plath, Kim Plath, Kim Plath killed Joshua, TLC, Welcome to Plathville Dana Hanson-Firestone 2 years agoBarry Plath is the patriarch of the Plath family and he has recently become a reality television star on the new series “Welcome to Plathville.” He’s a very private individual but his life is being made public on the television show that details the unique lifestyle that he and his wife have adopted to raise their family. Here are 10 things that you probably didn’t know about Barry Plath that might help you become better acquainted with the recent television personality.1. He is the father of nine childrenBarry and his wife Kim Plath have been married since 1997. He and Kim have nine children together. Three of them are adults and the rest are minor children who keep the couple on their toes, but it’s a lot of fun to go along with the hard work involved. The kids are Ethan age 21, Hosannah, 20, Micah 18, Moriah, 17, Lydia 15, Isaac 13, Amer 10, Cassia 8, and Mercy 6.2. He suffered a tragic loss in his familyWhile Barry was away at work, his wife Kim was busy at the family farm transplanting fruit trees. She was using their family suburban. She didn’t see their young son Joshua who got in the way of the vehicle. Kim ran over 17-month old Joshua accidentally. An ambulance was called and Barry was right behind the emergency vehicle on the more than 10 mile trip to the family farm. When he and the emergency crew arrived, his son had passed away. this was a terribly hard thing for Barry and Kim to bear.3. Barry Plath is kind, loving and not judgmental of his wifeAfter the loss of his son, “Barry looks like he knows where the bodies are buried.” Then, another person noted, “FYI whenever Kim talks about Joshua’s death it makes me EXTREMELY uncomfortable.” One person picked up on the conversation Kim had. They wrote, “Geez, the way she explained Joshua’s death to the girls was...Factual, but... the words she used as in “killed” why not “went to Heaven?” Then saying “ran over”...maybe “truck hit him... a fatal accident.” Does anyone else feel like something doesn’t add up with the story of how Joshua died and how she talks about it? #welcometoplathville pic.twitter.com/VbXAdGgCYi — Samantha (@samjami14) December 16, 2020 While Barry Path and Kim went through a tragic time, some Welcome to Plathville fans just don’t know if it all went down the way they describe it. Tags: Barry Plath and Kim, Joshua Plath, Kim Plath, Kim Plath killed Joshua, TLC, Welcome to Plathville Dana Hanson-Firestone 2 years agoBarry Plath is the patriarch of the Plath family and he has recently become a reality television star on the new series “Welcome to Plathville.” He’s a very private individual but his life is being made public on the television show that details the unique lifestyle that he and his wife have adopted to raise their family. Here are 10 things that you probably didn’t know about Barry Plath that might help you become better acquainted with the recent television personality.1. He is the father of nine childrenBarry and his wife Kim Plath have been married since 1997. He and Kim have nine children together. Three of them are adults and the rest are minor children who keep the couple on their toes, but it’s a lot of fun to go along with the hard work involved. The kids are Ethan age 21, Hosannah, 20, Micah 18, Moriah, 17, Lydia 15, Isaac 13, Amer 10, Cassia 8, and Mercy 6.2. He suffered a tragic loss in his familyWhile Barry was away at work, his wife Kim was busy at the family farm transplanting fruit trees. She was using their family suburban. She didn’t see their young son Joshua who got in the way of the vehicle. Kim ran over 17-month old Joshua accidentally. An ambulance was called and Barry was right behind the emergency vehicle on the more than 10 mile trip to the family farm. When he and the emergency crew arrived, his son had passed away. this was a terribly hard thing for Barry and Kim to bear.3. Barry Plath is kind, loving and not judgmental of his wifeAfter the loss of his son, “Barry looks like he knows where the bodies are buried.” Then, another person noted, “FYI whenever Kim talks about Joshua’s death it makes me EXTREMELY uncomfortable.” One person picked up on the conversation Kim had. They wrote, “Geez, the way she explained Joshua’s death to the girls was...Factual, but... the words she used as in “killed” why not “went to Heaven?” Then saying “ran over”...maybe “truck hit him... a fatal accident.” Does anyone else feel like something doesn’t add up with the story of how Joshua died and how she talks about it? #welcometoplathville pic.twitter.com/VbXAdGgCYi — Samantha (@samjami14) December 16, 2020 While Barry Path and Kim went through a tragic time, some Welcome to Plathville fans just don’t know if it all went down the way they describe it. Tags: Barry Plath and Kim, Joshua Plath, Kim Plath, Kim Plath killed Joshua, TLC, Welcome to Plathville Dana Hanson-Firestone 2 years agoBarry Plath is the patriarch of the Plath family and he has recently become a reality television star on the new series “Welcome to Plathville.” He’s a very private individual but his life is being made public on the television show that details the unique lifestyle that he and his wife have adopted to raise their family. Here are 10 things that you probably didn’t know about Barry Plath that might help you become better acquainted with the recent television personality.1. He is the father of nine childrenBarry and his wife Kim Plath have been married since 1997. He and Kim have nine children together. Three of them are adults and the rest are minor children who keep the couple on their toes, but it’s a lot of fun to go along with the hard work involved. The kids are Ethan age 21, Hosannah, 20, Micah 18, Moriah, 17, Lydia 15, Isaac 13, Amer 10, Cassia 8, and Mercy 6.2. He suffered a tragic loss in his familyWhile Barry was away at work, his wife Kim was busy at the family farm transplanting fruit trees. She was using their family suburban. She didn’t see their young son Joshua who got in the way of the vehicle. Kim ran over 17-month old Joshua accidentally. An ambulance was called and Barry was right behind the emergency vehicle on the more than 10 mile trip to the family farm. When he and the emergency crew arrived, his son had passed away. this was a terribly hard thing for Barry and Kim to bear.3. Barry Plath is kind, loving and not judgmental of his wifeAfter the loss of his son, “Barry looks like he knows where the bodies are buried.” Then, another person noted, “FYI whenever Kim talks about Joshua’s death it makes me EXTREMELY uncomfortable.” One person picked up on the conversation Kim had. They wrote, “Geez, the way she explained Joshua’s death to the girls was...Factual, but... the words she used as in “killed” why not “went to Heaven?” Then saying “ran over”...maybe “truck hit him... a fatal accident.” Does anyone else feel like something doesn’t add up with the story of how Joshua died and how she talks about it? #welcometoplathville pic.twitter.com/VbXAdGgCYi — Samantha (@samjami14) December 16, 2020 While Barry Path and Kim went through a tragic time, some Welcome to Plathville fans just don’t know if it all went down the way they describe it. Tags: Barry Plath and Kim, Joshua Plath, Kim Plath, Kim Plath killed Joshua, TLC, Welcome to Plathville Dana Hanson-Firestone 2 years agoBarry Plath is the patriarch of the Plath family and he has recently become a reality television star on the new series “Welcome to Plathville.” He’s a very private individual but his life is being made public on the television show that details the unique lifestyle that he and his wife have adopted to raise their family. Here are 10 things that you probably didn’t know about Barry Plath that might help you become better acquainted with the recent television personality.1. He is the father of nine childrenBarry and his wife Kim Plath have been married since 1997. He and Kim have nine children together. Three of them are adults and the rest are minor children who keep the couple on their toes, but it’s a lot of fun to go along with the hard work involved. The kids are Ethan age 21, Hosannah, 20, Micah 18, Moriah, 17, Lydia 15, Isaac 13, Amer 10, Cassia 8, and Mercy 6.2. He suffered a tragic loss in his familyWhile Barry was away at work, his wife Kim was busy at the family farm transplanting fruit trees. She was using their family suburban. She didn’t see their young son Joshua who got in the way of the vehicle. Kim ran over 17-month old Joshua accidentally. An ambulance was called and Barry was right behind the emergency vehicle on the more than 10 mile trip to the family farm. When he and the emergency crew arrived, his son had passed away. this was a terribly hard thing for Barry and Kim to bear.3. Barry Plath is kind, loving and not judgmental of his wifeAfter the loss of his son, “Barry looks like he knows where the bodies are buried.” Then, another person noted, “FYI whenever Kim talks about Joshua’s death it makes me EXTREMELY uncomfortable.” One person picked up on the conversation Kim had. They wrote, “Geez, the way she explained Joshua’s death to the girls was...Factual, but... the words she used as in “killed” why not “went to Heaven?” Then saying “ran over”...maybe “truck hit him... a fatal accident.” Does anyone else feel like something doesn’t add up with the story of how Joshua died and how she talks about it? #welcometoplathville pic.twitter.com/VbXAdGgCYi — Samantha (@samjami14) December 16, 2020 While Barry Path and Kim went through a tragic time, some Welcome to Plathville fans just don’t know if it all went down the way they describe it. Tags: Barry Plath and Kim, Joshua Plath, Kim Plath, Kim Plath killed Joshua, TLC, Welcome to Plathville Dana Hanson-Firestone 2 years agoBarry Plath is the patriarch of the Plath family and he has recently become a reality television star on the new series “Welcome to Plathville.” He’s a very private individual but his life is being made public on the television show that details the unique lifestyle that he and his wife have adopted to raise their family. Here are 10 things that you probably didn’t know about Barry Plath that might help you become better acquainted with the recent television personality.1. He is the father of nine childrenBarry and his wife Kim Plath have been married since 1997. He and Kim have nine children together. Three of them are adults and the rest are minor children who keep the couple on their toes, but it’s a lot of fun to go along with the hard work involved. The kids are Ethan age 21, Hosannah, 20, Micah 18, Moriah, 17, Lydia 15, Isaac 13, Amer 10, Cassia 8, and Mercy 6.2. He suffered a tragic loss in his familyWhile Barry was away at work, his wife Kim was busy at the family farm transplanting fruit trees. She was using their family suburban. She didn’t see their young son Joshua who got in the way of the vehicle. Kim ran over 17-month old Joshua accidentally. An ambulance was called and Barry was right behind the emergency vehicle on the more than 10 mile trip to the family farm. When he and the emergency crew arrived, his son had passed away. this was a terribly hard thing for Barry and Kim to bear.3. Barry Plath is kind, loving and not judgmental of his wifeAfter the loss of his son, “Barry looks like he knows where the bodies are buried.” Then, another person noted, “FYI whenever Kim talks about Joshua’s death it makes me EXTREMELY uncomfortable.” One person picked up on the conversation Kim had. They wrote, “Geez, the way she explained Joshua’s death to the girls was...Factual, but... the words she used as in “killed” why not “went to Heaven?” Then saying “ran over”...maybe “truck hit him... a fatal accident.” Does anyone else feel like something doesn’t add up with the story of how Joshua died and how she talks about it? #welcometoplathville pic.twitter.com/VbXAdGgCYi — Samantha (@samjami14) December 16, 2020 While Barry Path and Kim went through a tragic time, some Welcome to Plathville fans just don’t know if it all went down the way they describe it. Tags: Barry Plath and Kim, Joshua Plath, Kim Plath, Kim Plath killed Joshua, TLC, Welcome to Plathville Dana Hanson-Firestone 2 years agoBarry Plath is the patriarch of the Plath family and he has recently become a reality television star on the new series “Welcome to Plathville.” He’s a very private individual but his life is being made public on the television show that details the unique lifestyle that he and his wife have adopted to raise their family. Here are 10 things that you probably didn’t know about Barry Plath that might help you become better acquainted with the recent television personality.1. He is the father of nine childrenBarry and his wife Kim Plath have been married since 1997. He and Kim have nine children together. Three of them are adults and the rest are minor children who keep the couple on their toes, but it’s a lot of fun to go along with the hard work involved. The kids are Ethan age 21, Hosannah, 20, Micah 18, Moriah, 17, Lydia 15, Isaac 13, Amer 10, Cassia 8, and Mercy 6.2. He suffered a tragic loss in his familyWhile Barry was away at work, his wife Kim was busy at the family farm transplanting fruit trees. She was using their family suburban. She didn’t see their young son Joshua who got in the way of the vehicle. Kim ran over 17-month old Joshua accidentally. An ambulance was called and Barry was right behind the emergency vehicle on the more than 10 mile trip to the family farm. When he and the emergency crew arrived, his son had passed away. this was a terribly hard thing for Barry and Kim to bear.3. Barry Plath is kind, loving and not judgmental of his wifeAfter the loss of his son, “Barry looks like he knows where the bodies are buried.” Then, another person noted, “FYI whenever Kim talks about Joshua’s death it makes me EXTREMELY uncomfortable.” One person picked up on the conversation Kim had. They wrote, “Geez, the way she explained Joshua’s death to the girls was...Factual, but... the words she used as in “killed” why not “went to Heaven?” Then saying “ran over”...maybe “truck hit him... a fatal accident.” Does anyone else feel like something doesn’t add up with the story of how Joshua died and how she talks about it? #welcometoplathville pic.twitter.com/VbXAdGgCYi — Samantha (@samjami14) December 16, 2020 While Barry Path and Kim went through a tragic time, some Welcome to Plathville fans just don’t know if it all went down the way they describe it. Tags: Barry Plath and Kim, Joshua Plath, Kim Plath, Kim Plath killed Joshua, TLC, Welcome to Plathville Dana Hanson-Firestone 2 years agoBarry Plath is the patriarch of the Plath family and he has recently become a reality television star on the new series “Welcome to Plathville.” He’s a very private individual but his life is being made public on the television show that details the unique lifestyle that he and his wife have adopted to raise their family. Here are 10 things that you probably didn’t know about Barry Plath that might help you become better acquainted with the recent television personality.1. He is the father of nine childrenBarry and his wife Kim Plath have been married since 1997. He and Kim have nine children together. Three of them are adults and the rest are minor children who keep the couple on their toes, but it’s a lot of fun to go along with the hard work involved. The kids are Ethan age 21, Hosannah, 20, Micah 18, Moriah, 17, Lydia 15, Isaac 13, Amer 10, Cassia 8, and Mercy 6.2. He suffered a tragic loss in his familyWhile Barry was away at work, his wife Kim was busy at the family farm transplanting fruit trees. She was using their family suburban. She didn’t see their young son Joshua who got in the way of the vehicle. Kim ran over 17-month old Joshua accidentally. An ambulance was called and Barry was right behind the emergency vehicle on the more than 10 mile trip to the family farm. When he and the emergency crew arrived, his son had passed away. this was a terribly hard thing for Barry and Kim to bear.3. Barry Plath is kind, loving and not judgmental of his wifeAfter the loss of his son, “Barry looks like he knows where the bodies are buried.” Then, another person noted, “FYI whenever Kim talks about Joshua’s death it makes me EXTREMELY uncomfortable.” One person picked up on the conversation Kim had. They wrote, “Geez, the way she explained Joshua’s death to the girls was...Factual, but... the words she used as in “killed” why not “went to Heaven?” Then saying “ran over”...maybe “truck hit him... a fatal accident.” Does anyone else feel like something doesn’t add up with the story of how Joshua died and how she talks about it? #welcometoplathville pic.twitter.com/VbXAdGgCYi — Samantha (@samjami14) December 16, 2020 While Barry Path and Kim went through a tragic time, some Welcome to Plathville fans just don’t know if it all went down the way they describe it. Tags: Barry Plath and Kim, Joshua Plath, Kim Plath, Kim Plath killed Joshua, TLC, Welcome to Plathville Dana Hanson-Firestone 2 years agoBarry Plath is the patriarch of the Plath family and he has recently become a reality television star on the new series “Welcome to Plathville.” He’s a very private individual but his life is being made public on the television show that details the unique lifestyle that he and his wife have adopted to raise their family. Here are 10 things that you probably didn’t know about Barry Plath that might help you become better acquainted with the recent television personality.1. He is the father of nine childrenBarry and his wife Kim Plath have been married since 1997. He and Kim have nine children together. Three of them are adults and the rest are minor children who keep the couple on their toes, but it’s a lot of fun to go along with the hard work involved. The kids are Ethan age 21, Hosannah, 20, Micah 18, Moriah, 17, Lydia 15, Isaac 13, Amer 10, Cassia 8, and Mercy 6.2. He suffered a tragic loss in his familyWhile Barry was away at work, his wife Kim was busy at the family farm transplanting fruit trees. She was using their family suburban. She didn’t see their young son Joshua who got in the way of the vehicle. Kim ran over 17-month old Joshua accidentally. An ambulance was called and Barry was right behind the emergency vehicle on the more than 10 mile trip to the family farm. When he and the emergency crew arrived, his son had passed away. this was a terribly hard thing for Barry and Kim to bear.3. Barry Plath is kind, loving and not judgmental of his wifeAfter the loss of his son, “Barry looks like he knows where the bodies are buried.” Then, another person noted, “FYI whenever Kim talks about Joshua’s death it makes me EXTREMELY uncomfortable.” One person picked up on the conversation Kim had. They wrote, “Geez, the way she explained Joshua’s death to the girls was...Factual, but... the words she used as in “killed” why not “went to Heaven?” Then saying “ran over”...maybe “truck hit him... a fatal accident.” Does anyone else feel like something doesn’t add up with the story of how Joshua died and how she talks about it? #welcometoplathville pic.twitter.com/VbXAdGgCYi — Samantha (@samjami14) December 16, 2020 While Barry Path and Kim went through a tragic time, some Welcome to Plathville fans just don’t know if it all went down the way they describe it. Tags: Barry Plath and Kim, Joshua Plath, Kim Plath, Kim Plath killed Joshua, TLC, Welcome to Plathville Dana Hanson-Firestone 2 years agoBarry Plath is the patriarch of the Plath family and he has recently become a reality television star on the new series “Welcome to Plathville.” He’s a very private individual but his life is being made public on the television show that details the unique lifestyle that he and his wife have adopted to raise their family. Here are 10 things that you probably didn’t know about Barry Plath that might help you become better acquainted with the recent television personality.1. He is the father of nine childrenBarry and his wife Kim Plath have been married since 1997. He and Kim have nine children together. Three of them are adults and the rest are minor children who keep the couple on their toes, but it’s a lot of fun to go along with the hard work involved. The kids are Ethan age 21, Hosannah, 20, Micah 18, Moriah, 17, Lydia 15, Isaac 13, Amer 10, Cassia 8, and Mercy 6.2. He suffered a tragic loss in his familyWhile Barry was away at work, his wife Kim was busy at the family farm transplanting fruit trees. She was using their family suburban. She didn’t see their young son Joshua who got in the way of the vehicle. Kim ran over 17-month old Joshua accidentally. An ambulance was called and Barry was right behind the emergency vehicle on the more than 10 mile trip to the family farm. When he and the emergency crew arrived, his son had passed away. this was a terribly hard thing for Barry and Kim to bear.3. Barry Plath is kind, loving and not judgmental of his wifeAfter the loss of his son, “Barry looks like he knows where the bodies are buried.” Then, another person noted, “FYI whenever Kim talks about Joshua’s death it makes me EXTREMELY uncomfortable.” One person picked up on the conversation Kim had. They wrote, “Geez, the way she explained Joshua’s death to the girls was...Factual, but... the words she used as in “killed” why not “went to Heaven?” Then saying “ran over”...maybe “truck hit him... a fatal accident.” Does anyone else feel like something doesn’t add up with the story of how Joshua died and how she talks about it? #welcometoplathville pic.twitter.com/VbXAdGgCYi — Samantha (@samjami14) December 16, 2020 While Barry Path and Kim went through a tragic time, some Welcome to Plathville fans just don’t know if it all went down the way they describe it. Tags: Barry Plath and Kim, Joshua Plath, Kim Plath, Kim Plath killed Joshua, TLC, Welcome to Plathville Dana Hanson-Firestone 2 years agoBarry Plath is the patriarch of the Plath family and he has recently become a reality television star on the new series “Welcome to Plathville.” He’s a very private individual but his life is being made public on the television show that details the unique lifestyle that he and his wife have adopted to raise their family. Here are 10 things that you probably didn’t know about Barry Plath that might help you become better acquainted with the recent television personality.1. He is the father of nine childrenBarry and his wife Kim Plath have been married since 1997. He and Kim have nine children together. Three of them are adults and the rest are minor children who keep the couple on their toes, but it’s a lot of fun to go along with the hard work involved. The kids are Ethan age 21, Hosannah, 20, Micah 18, Moriah, 17, Lydia 15, Isaac 13, Amer 10, Cassia 8, and Mercy 6.2. He suffered a tragic loss in his familyWhile Barry was away at work, his wife Kim was busy at the family farm transplanting fruit trees. She was using their family suburban. She didn’t see their young son Joshua who got in the way of the vehicle. Kim ran over 17-month old Joshua accidentally. An ambulance was called and Barry was right behind the emergency vehicle on the more than 10 mile trip to the family farm. When he and the emergency crew arrived, his son had passed away. this was a terribly hard thing for Barry and Kim to bear.3. Barry Plath is kind, loving and not judgmental of his wifeAfter the loss of his son, “Barry looks like he knows where the bodies are buried.” Then, another person noted, “FYI whenever Kim talks about Joshua’s death it makes me EXTREMELY uncomfortable.” One person picked up on the conversation Kim had. They wrote, “Geez, the way she explained Joshua’s death to the girls was...Factual, but... the words she used as in “killed” why not “went to Heaven?” Then saying “ran over”...maybe “truck hit him... a fatal accident.” Does anyone else feel like something doesn’t add up with the story of how Joshua died and how she talks about it? #welcometoplathville pic.twitter.com/VbXAdGgCYi — Samantha (@samjami14) December 16, 2020 While Barry Path and Kim went through a tragic time, some Welcome to Plathville fans just don’t know if it all went down the way they describe it. Tags: Barry Plath and Kim, Joshua Plath, Kim Plath, Kim Plath killed Joshua, TLC, Welcome to Plathville Dana Hanson-Firestone 2 years agoBarry Plath is the patriarch of the Plath family and he has recently become a reality television star on the new series “Welcome to Plathville.” He’s a very private individual but his life is being made public on the television show that details the unique lifestyle that he and his wife have adopted to raise their family. Here are 10 things that you probably didn’t know about Barry Plath that might help you become better acquainted with the recent television personality.1. He is the father of nine childrenBarry and his wife Kim Plath have been married since 1997. He and Kim have nine children together. Three of them are adults and the rest are minor children who keep the couple on their toes, but it’s a lot of fun to go along with the hard work involved. The kids are Ethan age 21, Hosannah, 20, Micah 18, Moriah, 17, Lydia 15, Isaac 13, Amer 10, Cassia 8, and Mercy 6.2. He suffered a tragic loss in his familyWhile Barry was away at work, his wife Kim was busy at the family farm transplanting fruit trees. She was using their family suburban. She didn’t see their young son Joshua who got in the way of the vehicle. Kim ran over 17-month old Joshua accidentally. An ambulance was called and Barry was right behind the emergency vehicle on the more than 10 mile trip to the family farm. When he and the emergency crew arrived, his son had passed away. this was a terribly hard thing for Barry and Kim to bear.3. Barry Plath is kind, loving and not judgmental of his wifeAfter the loss of his son, “Barry looks like he knows where the bodies are buried.” Then, another person noted, “FYI whenever Kim talks about Joshua’s death it makes me EXTREMELY uncomfortable.” One person picked up on the conversation Kim had. They wrote, “Geez, the way she explained Joshua’s death to the girls was...Factual, but... the words she used as in “killed” why not “went to Heaven?” Then saying “ran over”...maybe “truck hit him... a fatal accident.” Does anyone else feel like something doesn’t add up with the story of how Joshua died and how she talks about it? #welcometoplathville pic.twitter.com/VbXAdGgCYi — Samantha (@samjami14) December 16, 2020 While Barry Path and Kim went through a tragic time, some Welcome to Plathville fans just don’t know if it all went down the way they describe it. Tags: Barry Plath and Kim, Joshua Plath, Kim Plath, Kim Plath killed Joshua, TLC, Welcome to Plathville Dana Hanson-Firestone 2 years agoBarry Plath is the patriarch of the Plath family and he has recently become a reality television star on the new series “Welcome to Plathville.” He’s a very private individual but his life is being made public on the television show that details the unique lifestyle that he and his wife have adopted to raise their family. Here are 10 things that you probably didn’t know about Barry Plath that might help you become better acquainted with the recent television personality.1. He is the father of nine childrenBarry and his wife Kim Plath have been married since 1997. He and Kim have nine children together. Three of them are adults and the rest are minor children who keep the couple on their toes, but it’s a lot of fun to go along with the hard work involved. The kids are Ethan age 21, Hosannah, 20, Micah 18, Moriah, 17, Lydia 15, Isaac 13, Amer 10, Cassia 8, and Mercy 6.2. He suffered a tragic loss in his familyWhile Barry was away at work, his wife Kim was busy at the family farm transplanting fruit trees. She was using their family suburban. She didn’t see their young son Joshua who got in the way of the vehicle. Kim ran over 17-month old Joshua accidentally. An ambulance was called and Barry was right behind the emergency vehicle on the more than 10 mile trip to the family farm. When he and the emergency crew arrived, his son had passed away. this was a terribly hard thing for Barry and Kim to bear.3. Barry Plath is kind, loving and not judgmental of his wifeAfter the loss of his son, “Barry looks like he knows where the bodies are buried.” Then, another person noted, “FYI whenever Kim talks about Joshua’s death it makes me EXTREMELY uncomfortable.” One person picked up on the conversation Kim had. They wrote, “Geez, the way she explained Joshua’s death to the girls was...Factual, but... the words she used as in “killed” why not “went to Heaven?” Then saying “ran over”...maybe “truck hit him... a fatal accident.” Does anyone else feel like something doesn’t add up with the story of how Joshua died and how she talks about it? #welcometoplathville pic.twitter.com/VbXAdGgCYi — Samantha (@samjami14) December 16, 2020 While Barry Path and Kim went through a tragic time, some Welcome to Plathville fans just don’t know if it all went down the way they describe it. Tags: Barry Plath and Kim, Joshua Plath, Kim Plath, Kim Plath killed Joshua, TLC, Welcome to Plathville Dana Hanson-Firestone 2 years agoBarry Plath is the patriarch of the Plath family and he has recently become a reality television star on the new series “Welcome to Plathville.” He’s a very private individual but his life is being made public on the television show that details the unique lifestyle that he and his wife have adopted to raise their family. Here are 10 things that you probably didn’t know about Barry Plath that might help you become better acquainted with the recent television personality.1. He is the father of nine childrenBarry and his wife Kim Plath have been married since 1997. He and Kim have nine children together. Three of them are adults and the rest are minor children who keep the couple on their toes, but it’s a lot of fun to go along with the hard work involved. The kids are Ethan age 21, Hosannah, 20, Micah 18, Moriah, 17, Lydia 15, Isaac 13, Amer 10, Cassia 8, and Mercy 6.2. He suffered a tragic loss in his familyWhile Barry was away at work, his wife Kim was busy at the family farm transplanting fruit trees. She was using their family suburban. She didn’t see their young son Joshua who got in the way of the vehicle. Kim ran over 17-month old Joshua accidentally. An ambulance was called and Barry was right behind the emergency vehicle on the more than 10 mile trip to the family farm. When he and the emergency crew arrived, his son had passed away. this was a terribly hard thing for Barry and Kim to bear.3. Barry Plath is kind, loving and not judgmental of his wifeAfter the loss of his son, “Barry looks like he knows where the bodies are buried.” Then, another person noted, “FYI whenever Kim talks about Joshua’s death it makes me EXTREMELY uncomfortable.” One person picked up on the conversation Kim had. They wrote, “Geez, the way she explained Joshua’s death to the girls was...Factual, but... the words she used as in “killed” why not “went to Heaven?” Then saying “ran over”...maybe “truck hit him... a fatal accident.” Does anyone else feel like something doesn’t add up with the story of how Joshua died and how she talks about it? #welcometoplathville pic.twitter.com/VbXAdGgCYi — Samantha (@samjami14) December 16, 2020 While Barry Path and Kim went through a tragic time, some Welcome to Plathville fans just don’t know if it all went down the way they describe it. Tags: Barry Plath and Kim, Joshua Plath, Kim Plath, Kim Plath killed Joshua, TLC, Welcome to Plathville Dana Hanson-Firestone 2 years agoBarry Plath is the patriarch of the Plath family and he has recently become a reality television star on the new series “Welcome to Plathville.” He’s a very private individual but his life is being made public on the television show that details the unique lifestyle that he and his wife have adopted to raise their family. Here are 10 things that you probably didn’t know about Barry Plath that might help you become better acquainted with the recent television personality.1. He is the father of nine childrenBarry and his wife Kim Plath have been married since 1997. He and Kim have nine children together. Three of them are adults and the rest are minor children who keep the couple on their toes, but it’s a lot of fun to go along with the hard work involved. The kids are Ethan age 21, Hosannah, 20, Micah 18, Moriah, 17, Lydia 15, Isaac 13, Amer 10, Cassia 8, and Mercy 6.2. He suffered a tragic loss in his familyWhile Barry was away at work, his wife Kim was busy at the family farm transplanting fruit trees. She was using their family suburban. She didn’t see their young son Joshua who got in the way of the vehicle. Kim ran over 17-month old Joshua accidentally. An ambulance was called and Barry was right behind the emergency vehicle on the more than 10 mile trip to the family farm. When he and the emergency crew arrived, his son had passed away. this was a terribly hard thing for Barry and Kim to bear.3. Barry Plath is kind, loving and not judgmental of his wifeAfter the loss of his son, “Barry looks like he knows where the bodies are buried.” Then, another person noted, “FYI whenever Kim talks about Joshua’s death it makes me EXTREMELY uncomfortable.” One person picked up on the conversation Kim had. They wrote, “Geez, the way she explained Joshua’s death to the girls was...Factual, but... the words she used as in “killed” why not “went to Heaven?” Then saying “ran over”...maybe “truck hit him... a fatal accident.” Does anyone else feel like something doesn’t add up with the story of how Joshua died and how she talks about it? #welcometoplathville pic.twitter.com/VbXAdGgCYi — Samantha (@samjami14) December 16, 2020 While Barry Path and Kim went through a tragic time, some Welcome to Plathville fans just don’t know if it all went down the way they describe it. Tags: Barry Plath and Kim, Joshua Plath, Kim Plath, Kim Plath killed Joshua, TLC, Welcome to Plathville Dana Hanson-Firestone 2 years agoBarry Plath is the patriarch of the Plath family and he has recently become a reality television star on the new series “Welcome to Plathville.” He’s a very private individual but his life is being made public on the television show that details the unique lifestyle that he and his wife have adopted to raise their family. Here are 10 things that you probably didn’t know about Barry Plath that might help you become better acquainted with the recent television personality.1. He is the father of nine childrenBarry and his wife Kim Plath have been married since 1997. He and Kim have nine children together. Three of them are adults and the rest are minor children who keep the couple on their toes, but it’s a lot of fun to go along with the hard work involved. The kids are Ethan age 21, Hosannah, 20, Micah 18, Moriah, 17, Lydia 15, Isaac 13, Amer 10, Cassia 8, and Mercy 6.2. He suffered a tragic loss in his familyWhile Barry was away at work, his wife Kim was busy at the family farm transplanting fruit trees. She was using their family suburban. She didn’t see their young son Joshua who got in the way of the vehicle. Kim ran over 17-month old Joshua accidentally. An ambulance was called and Barry was right behind the emergency vehicle on the more than 10 mile trip to the family farm. When he and the emergency crew arrived, his son had passed away. this was a terribly hard thing for Barry and Kim to bear.3. Barry Plath is kind, loving and not judgmental of his wifeAfter the loss of his son, “Barry looks like he knows where the bodies are buried.” Then, another person noted, “FYI whenever Kim talks about Joshua’s death it makes me EXTREMELY uncomfortable.” One person picked up on the conversation Kim had. They wrote, “Geez, the way she explained Joshua’s death to the girls was...Factual, but... the words she used as in “killed” why not “went to Heaven?” Then saying “ran over”...maybe “truck hit him... a fatal accident.” Does anyone else feel like something doesn’t add up with the story of how Joshua died and how she talks about it? #welcometoplathville pic.twitter.com/VbXAdGgCYi — Samantha (@samjami14) December 16, 2020 While Barry Path and Kim went through a tragic time, some Welcome to Plathville fans just don’t know if it all went down the way they describe it. Tags: Barry Plath and Kim, Joshua Plath, Kim Plath, Kim Plath killed Joshua, TLC, Welcome to Plathville Dana Hanson-Firestone 2 years agoBarry Plath is the patriarch of the Plath family and he has recently become a reality television star on the new series “Welcome to Plathville.” He’s a very private individual but his life is being made public on the television show that details the unique lifestyle that he and his wife have adopted to raise their family. Here are 10 things that you probably didn’t know about Barry Plath that might help you become better